

Andreas Magnusson

Partner – Malmö

Andreas has a long and solid background as a business legal advisor, with a specific focus on construction law and real estate matters. His work in construction-related cases often involves dispute resolution, including negotiations and proceedings in general courts and arbitration processes, as well as providing advice during the implementation of construction projects. Andreas leads the firm's construction law group.

He has particularly extensive experience in real estate development, dealing with the various stages involved in transforming land into residential and commercial properties. This includes everything from land acquisition and the zoning process to procurement and project implementation. Andreas is also engaged as an arbitrator and serves as the chairperson in over-inspection committees.
